THE DOG: MAN’S BEST FRIEND OR WORST ENEMY?

Although I am well aware that the media is one of the strongest tools being used to brainwash and lead our people astray, I am guilty, like most of you, of occasionally sitting in front of the television (tell lies visually) curious as to what subliminal seduction of lies are being used to dominate our minds and keep us from finding the truth.
Well, while flipping through the channels, I inadvertently happened upon a show entitled, Dogs in the City. It’s about training dogs as well as their owners. The main character says he speaks canine and can train any breed, anytime, anywhere. There were dogs eating through walls after being confined by the owners all day, overweight dogs who ate all day and rarely exercised due to the owner having a weight-control issue, families living in fear and letting the dogs run the house, even dogs who were jealous of the baby or spouse and wouldn’t allow the spouse in the bed, dogs that were not treated like dogs, but like babies. Many commercials show dogs driving cars, using computers, patrolling in police cars complete with official uniform, and dogs that talk, and the list goes on and on. Dogs are doing everything and are everywhere. There are 80 million dogs in America. In my neighborhood, almost every family can be viewed walking their dogs daily, and surely the dogs, elated to be out of incarceration and confinement are happily running about sniffing out every tree, bush, telephone pole they previously established to do their business of leaving more than four million tons of feces and 45 million quarts of urine on city streets and parks. Not being a dog owner myself, it’s funny how they can relocate, aim, and hit their target in the exact spot their cocked hind legs hugged the day before with such accuracy and precision, far better than some humans I have encountered in my lifetime. People are under the impression that the dog is man’s best friend, but is the dog really man’s best friend, or man kind’s (a kind of man) worst enemy? Read on and you will find that the dog is one of the most defiled creatures on Earth.

Dogs belong to one species, Canis Familiaris (Notice the similarity to the name Canaan). In my opinion, there are too many similarities in appearance, character, and other habits to dismiss the possibilities not to mention their history of mating with canines which will be discussed, in detail, later. Here is a description of the human beast, “a grafted devil mortal beast, diseased and sick, spotted and covered with farar ‘fur’ all over like his breeders... Lycans, Lycnx, Homo Canines called Kalalb-u and Keleb (Hebrew Strong’s #3611 meaning ‘to yelp or else to attack; dog’, also shown in Elias Arabic English Dictionary as Kalbum or Kulaab for ‘dog’. Many were born detached from their mother’s cord and with tails. Others were born tailless. They walked on all fours, ate raw flesh of animals and mortals and were the offspring of Giants and Cherubims or I.G.I.G.I., 200 of the 300 cast down to Earth for the rape of human women.
They were wicked in nature and roamed about killing the beast of the fields.” (York, Dr. Malachi Z., Planet Earth Is Women, p.1) Now as you continue reading, think about the nature, appearance, personality, character and overall history of the Canaanites in relation to that of the Canis Familiaris species and you will be able to draw your own conclusion.

Dogs are the descendants of the wolf and jackal and can revert back to their ancestral traits. They are carnivorous beasts by nature. Most will sink their teeth into your jugular vein because they are blood-thirsty creatures, which goes hand in hand with the disagreeable ones wanting your soul or Dracula biting your neck. Other members of this Genus Canis include wolves, coyotes, and jackals. The wild dog was the first to separate from the wolf line, later splitting off to the foxes. After the wolf, came the coyote in America and Southern Eurasias. Finally, a small race of wolves was domesticated and gave rise to the “domestic dog” which in turn produced the Dingo in Australia.

It is in the dog’s blood to be like his ancestors, the wolves and jackals because they are of the same line of animals. What this means is they are capable, given the right circumstances, of attacking you. So watch out and heed this warning. When Rover barks uncontrollably and the owner says, “Oh Rover wouldn’t hurt a fly, so there is no need to be afraid!” Stay clear and ask yourself, “Can you truly tame a wolf, coyote, or jackal and be assured it won’t turn on you?” Shouldn’t the latter question apply to all who have that same nature?

I am certainly making no implication that the jackal, wolf, or dog is a relative or ancestor of Canaanites, I’m telling you that they are, for there were, at the time of creation, many products of experimentation, grafting, mix-breeding, cloning, etc. These beasts were bred by Mother Ninti (daughter of the Most High God responsible for creating all human life forms, assisted by Anunnaqi, called angels in their Bible). Her new breed could not articulate words, could not see well in daylight, their eyes being void of the Iris that attracts the sun’s energy, so they as Bat persons or Vampires walked in shadows, the children of Dragonians (Reptilian Beings from other planets). Another example of beast-like creatures is the Flugelrods who split into two groups. The Neanderthal or caveman considered shameless, moraless, hairy, raw flesh-eating beasts is one group. They are the fathers of the Nordic race and live in inner caverns of the Earth under Antarctica in their home called Palatkwapi. The second group of Flugelrods moved to a part of Russia called Caucasia or Caucasas Mountains and became known as the Khazars or Ashkenazims and the 7-ether haired Orientals or this seed called Asiatics who became known as the Sefarad or Sefaradim Jews.

Flugelrods of 8,400 years ago are not to be confused with the Canaanites, descendants of Canaan, the son of Ham and Haliyma of 6,000 years ago who dwelled in the Caucasus Mountains because the bright sunlight aggravated his condition and the cold climate was conducive to it, for he was not only an albino, he was also leprous with sores and white skin. His eyes were also sensitive to light. His race began to lose power to reproduce because the mountainous region was bare; therefore, the lack of salt reached a dangerous low. Lacking the full amount of internal melanin needed to activate the iodine interfered with the ability to reproduce offspring, as well as, affected the mental stability of the offspring. This deficiency resulted in weakness, low blood pressure, diminished blood sugar, and the inability to reproduce a full term healthy child. That’s when the Canaanite males came down from the mountains to kidnap Melanite women of the Nubian villages to have sex with them and reproduce an offspring that would not have the full curse of leprosy. With a shortage of males, the Canaanite women began laying with and having sexual intercourse with beasts like the jackal, ancestors of today’s dog, man’s best friend, who licked the sores of the lepers clean and were certainly partially responsible for keeping the Caucasian seed alive.

To make clear and reiterate my point, “THE CAUCASIAN SEED WAS KEPT ALIVE BECAUSE THE CANAANITE WOMEN AND THE JACKAL MATED.” (York, Dr. Malachi Z.; People of the Sun Scroll # 147, p. 10)

Now, in regard to the behavior of the women, feminines were tempted by the strength and wildness of this Homo Canine, Homo Simian full of muscles and muscular bodies. Their interaction gave birth to a kind of man, mankind, man’s kind, man’s kin who roamed the caves and hillsides with goats and hillbillies. This is also the time when Nubian women lost their divine powers and insight because her responsibility was to reject the human beast in order to bare children with clean and unspotted skin and coiled hair unlike the beast of the Earth.

Another example of humans with traits of the jackal were actually known as “Jackal People” because they had Hirsutism, or what is called hypertrichosis meaning “excessive growth of hair” from the Latin root Hir-sutus meaning “shaggy bristly”. “Hirsutism originated from the Jackal people who were descendants of Hindu Avatars incarnated on Terra, an earlier name for Earth from the planet Nirvana of the 6-Star constellation of Orion”. (York, Dr. Malachi Z.; People of the Sun, p. 12).
They mixed their seed with the Shaggy, thus reproducing a hairy, shaggy offspring. (Refer to Dr. Malachi Z. York’s Holy Tablets, Chapter 3, Tablet 3.)

Many of the Canine species have been derived from wolf-like ancestors such as the wolf and the jackal. Psychological and anatomical features of the varied canine species were already present before man started selecting wolves with certain characteristics to serve his own purpose. The ferocious Pinscher and German shepherd, mutant descendants of the jackal were so-called domesticated because of their ability to work under direction and form firm habits. They can easily be taught to protect the herd from hostile tribes and larger carnivorous animals. These dogs were not considered fierce enough, so they were cross-bred with the wolf. The fiercer the dog, the more wolf is likely to be present in his ancestry. Doberman Pinschers, Shetland Sheep dogs, and German shepherds are predominantly wolf. All dogs will revert to the mannerisms of the wolf given the right circumstances. It is difficult to interpret any behavior of a dog as normal because animals adapt to situations in ways that give them satisfaction, however bizarre and unusual it may appear to the onlooker. Diseases may also cause a change in behavior. Convulsions (fits) staggering gaits, etc., usually indicate a serious disease. Dogs confined to small areas or pens for long periods may develop the habit of running in circles or jumping from side to side when approached by a human. Left alone for long periods of time, dogs will often chew furniture or even attack adults and children. This behavior shows a frustrated attempt to escape. All dogs, without exception have tried to bite their master or a family member at one time or another. Wolves, the most dangerous of the Genis Canis species, were eliminated from forty-eight states at one time, but are now back in strength which is not good news. Wolves are now migrating rapidly from Canada and reestablishing packs in Montana, Idaho, and Washington.

To improve the strains of dogs, Caucasians or Euro-Americans have choice-bred hundreds of breeds throughout the world and classified them as purebreeds, cross-breeds, or mongrels (muts). A pure breed’s Sire (father) and Dam (mother) belong to the same breed. Crossbreed’s parents belong to different breeds, and a mongrel is of mixed ancestry, meaning no one breed can be recognized. There are 125 registered breeds of dogs categorized into six groups, not including mongrels:

1. Sporting Dogs
2. Hounds
3. Working Dogs
4. Terriers
5. Toy Dogs
6. Non-Sporting Dogs
People invest millions on these animals, man’s best friend, with dog shows, grooming parlors, dog food, toys, and dog houses while millions of people die of starvation or live as homeless in the streets everyday. In Europe, dogs eat at the same table and use the same dishes as humans in some restaurants. This is proof that before a person will feed or clothe you, he/she will take care of his best friend, the dog. Dogs are living lives of luxury while people in this country and other countries are starving! Americans spend more than 2.5 billion dollars yearly on dog food. This is enough to feed one-third of the world’s population.

Working Dogs make up the largest of the AKC (American Kennel Club) group with thirty-two breeds serving people in various ways: herding cattle and sheep; guarding, pulling sleds, and serving as seeing-eye dogs, etc. Terriers total twenty-three breeds and were originally bred to drive game out of holes in the ground or earth which is why their name comes from Terra meaning “Earth”; most originated in England. They make fearless watchdogs and also help people by killing rodents and other pests. Toy Dogs consist of fifteen small breeds used only as pets. Poodles and Manchester Terriers are also included in this group. They come from various parts of the world like the Chihuahua developed in Spain, Pekingese in China, Papillion in Spain. The largest Toy Dog is the Pug and weighs up to eighteen pounds. Non-sporting Dogs consist of eleven breeds chiefly kept as pets but originally bred for work or sport. The Boston terrier is the only non-sporting breed that originated in the United States by mating bulldogs with terriers.

The canine was not the only species that scientists and animal breeders choice-bred. Take the mule, for example, the offspring of an ass and a horse; the ligers and tigons, offspring of the lion and the tiger, the aardvark, an offspring of the dog, cat, and rat. Its real name is “Earth Pig”; the bat, an offspring of the bird and the rat. It is important to note here that the Luciferians (Evil Ones) thrive off of altering recreation and truth. By destroying the forests and jungles, animals of different species live closer together, forcing them to cross-breed with other species. Various animals have mated outside their class. They also use laboratories to mix embryos with other animals to make different species.

During the time of Abraham, the pig was cloned through genetic splicing of three animals, the rat, cat, and the dog. This was done for a specific purpose. A group of beast-like savages called Behometh were living like animals in the Caucasus Mountains inside caves. These were the same people aforementioned who came about as a result of the curse placed on Canaan, the son of Haliyma and Ham (Genesis 9:25). Due to their mating with beasts like the jackal, ancestors of today’s dog, many diseases came about, such as Gonorrhea, a disease that attacks the reproductive system and the urinary system caused by bacterium exclusively transmitted through sexual contact. Syphilis is another very serious disease that can affect any organ and is caused by spiral-shaped bacteria called spirochete. Canine Transmissible Venereal Tumor is another disease which causes tumors to grow on or near the genitals and sometimes on the face, shoulders and other parts of the body. Trichomonosis is an infection of a Parasitic Protozoan Trichomonas Vaginalis, one species of Zooflagellate Protozoa that are common parasites in the digestive system of animals which can be sexually transmitted and Hypertrichosis, which I mentioned earlier comes from the word Hirsuties and means “excessive growth of hair.” As previously stated, dogs often carry parasites like the worm and lice. Lice can spend an entire life cycle on the dog and are easily transmitted by direct contact such as touching or petting. Fleas, unlike lice, leave the dog during parts of their life cycle to breed. Fleas live in filth. Common areas are yards, barnyards, and places where animals deposit feces. Ticks attach themselves to dogs or humans and breed on grassy or bushy areas and are responsible for Lyme Disease. Dogs also transmit Hepatitis (attacks the liver); Cutaneous Larval Migrans (skin rash); Distemper (virus); Echinococcus Granulosus (tape worm); Mange (mites that live in hair follicles); Rabies (mad dog bites). This is what some people choose to live with. If you are one of those people, one day, you may see just what you are truly living with! Umm! How cute? Will you still be saying this if your family contracts a deadly disease? Is this cute, adorable, or just plain unsanitary? Think! That same dog that sniffs manure and other filth when you walk him in the streets is the same dog that turns around and licks you in the face. Still cute?

Abraham was assigned the task of cleaning up this land filled with diseased beings. He journeyed to Egypt to find a way to clean up the dead carcasses and the leprosy. These unclean lepers walked on all fours, ate raw flesh, whether clean or unclean, and were covered with raw open sores. They were literally half animal and half man since they practiced bestiality (having sex with animals). Their diseases caused a great famine. There were so many dead bodies everywhere that Abraham had trouble locating a clear path up to the Caucasus Mountains. With the help of Pharaoh Zoser and ImHotep, Abraham was able to find the formula to crossbreed something just as nasty as those creatures. The dog was the first animal chosen because of its disagreeable nature, however, the Euro-Americans loved the dog so much, when they were establishing their language, they reversed the spelling of dog to God and worshipped it. Anubis was the symbol of death that they used to replace the Most High’s name. The dog was also chosen because it was so dumb that if you told it to fetch a stick and threw it over the bridge, it would go get it. In addition, dogs are not particular about what they eat like their ancestors, the jackal.
Their carnivorous habits make them useful as scavengers. The second animal chosen was the rodent (rat) because it eats everything except metal. Finally, the cat was the third animal chosen because of its wisdom and cleanliness. This combination or genetic engineering and selective breeding fused together created the “Swine”. It was designed to be a scavenger to eat up filth and abomination. It was never designed to be eaten. In fact, to eat or even touch the swine was forbidden in Leviticus 11:7; Koran 2:173, 6:145. So, the swine was used to clear away the infested bodies so that Abraham could reach those who were still alive. He collected specimens of lepers in order to learn more about their diseases and how to cure or control them.

The Israelites disproved of dogs because the laws given by Moses stated that it was an abomination to bring dogs into the house. Packs of dogs ran wild through the streets of cities including Palestine, howling, hungry, and snarling at night after sleeping all day. The Israelites considered them cowardly, filthy creatures, but did not consider them completely useless as they were used to guard the flock. Dogs also know when someone is dying or dead. This is denoted through their howls. They can see the presence of Enqi (The angel of death), however, when the last plague, “Death of the First Born,” swept across Egypt, the dogs would not howl because of the presence of the Israelites.

“But against any of the children of Israel shall not a dog move his tongue, against man or beast: that ye may know how that the lord doth put a difference between the Egyptians and Israel”. (Exodus 11:7)

The Egyptians also knew of the dog’s ability to sense death, and for this, the dog was deified. Anubis was the Egyptian’s Deity or Neter of the dead represented by a jackal or dog head. He guided and aided the dead and took care of the embalming through laying groundwork for resurrection from the mummy state.

The dog has been in the company of mankind for more than 10,000 years according to one encyclopedia. It further states that millions of years ago lived a tree-climbing carnivorous mammal called Miacias, from which the lineage of the canines is traced through Cynodictis, deriving from African Cape Hunting Dog, the Indian Wild Dog (or Dhole) and the South American Bush Dog ultimately sprang through Tomarctus, the Progenitor of the fox, wolf, jackal and dog. As far as the amount of years recorded for the dog being with mankind, It is not true for the Caucasian has only been on Earth for 6,000 years. This is how the Caucasian accounts for his existence constantly covering up and altering facts that he hopes goes unnoticed.
Here are some common sayings related to man’s best friend:

1. Barking Dogs Never Bite—Describes people who sound more dangerous than they really are.
2. Barking up the Wrong Tree—Means to look for something in the wrong place.
3. Dog in a Manger—Describes a person who keeps others from using something that he himself cannot use. It comes from Aesop’s Fable of a dog that crawled into a manger or hay, and prevented a horse from eating, even though dogs do not eat hay.
4. Every Dog Has His Day—Is an expression used when something unpleasant happens to a person especially one who has had good luck.
5. Let Sleeping Dogs Lie—Means to leave a situation undisturbed.
7. Lay Down With Dogs, Get Up With Flees—(self-explanatory)

Carnivera (the flesh eaters) is the order that the family of the dog and their relatives belong. That is why the domestic dog, as he is called today is attacking and killing innocent victims. One victim, a young girl, had so many dog bites, the medics couldn’t tell where the blood was coming from. The dog can’t help being what he is - a flesh-eating, blood-thirsty beast that became tamed, and you will never know when he will turn on you. It is obvious how much Canaanites and some Nuwaubians have surrounded themselves with pets especially the gerbils, rats, cats, and dogs - the same animals that were used to create the pig. They are the most popular and everywhere you look it is also obvious how much they love their dogs. They even go out of their way to look like them. Some have pets to substitute for children, husbands, and wives. Dogs provide companionship, devotion, which can be misinterpreted as love and denied to some, like the elderly, by their families or society in general.

Canaanites participate in sexual relations with these animals and when they die, they even leave large sums of money to them while people are starving all over the world. There are many tragedies that occur when dogs are in the house, and then the owner gets rid of the animal only after it has attacked or killed someone. This is a good example of the dog reverting back to the mannerisms of their ancestors, the jackal, wolf, etc. I mentioned earlier that every day dogs deposit more than four million tons of feces and 45 million quarts of urine on city streets and parks. It is not only a health hazard; it is costly to clean up. Americans spend more than 2.5 billion dollars on commercially prepared pet food alone to feed their pet, which is more than six times as much as they spend on baby food. Americans can help feed the hungry by reducing the dog and cat population by 50%. These are reasons you should leave the unclean animals out of your lives, away from your children and family.
Some will try to convince you that you need animals such as the dog. The next time you decide to buy a pet for the family, consider these facts:

1. If you had a pet goldfish and didn’t feed it, what would happen to it?
   It would starve to death!
2. If you had a pet turtle and didn’t feed it, what would happen to it?
   It would starve to death!
3. If you had a cat and didn’t feed it, what would happen to it?
   It would first try to run away, and if it couldn’t escape, it would starve to death.
4. If you had a dog and didn’t feed it, what would happen to it?
   IT WOULD ATTACK YOU AND THEN EAT YOU!!!

You may still be asking, “Are dogs forbidden to man?” The answer is yes, if they are running around in your house, sleeping in your bed, bathing in your tub, eating from your plates; however, if you have a farm or cattle, it is okay to own dogs, but make sure you select pedigrees that are bred for health and intelligence, and don’t train them to be used as weapons by depriving them of meals and feeding them only hot sauce.

Euro-Americans have long searched for the “missing link” in their ancestry. They need look no further than their own back yard- their beast (best) friend, the Dog. This attachment they have with animals, especially the dog, is a part of their natural heritage. There are those among us who have lain with, and are the children of the beast, and they are a different kind of man. They are punished and cursed with leprosy and have mixed their DNA with all other race’s genes, and no matter what color they are, even black, they will, like the Canis Familiais, act according to their innate nature regardless of what they look like on the outside.

I’m sure you read or heard about these recent acts of cannibalism: In Paris, a Canadian porn actor was suspected of torturing, killing, and eating a Chinese engineering student and mailing body parts to Canadian officials; in Miami police shot and killed a man after he refused to stop eating another man’s face; a 21 year old student at Morgan State University in Maryland was arrested on suspicion of killing his roommate and eating his heart and brain; in Texas, a woman confessed to killing her infant son with a steak knife and two swords, mutilating the corpse and eating the brain, nose, and toes. (www.abc15.com) Authorities claim bath salt as one of the culprits, but as we move closer to “the end” and the planet continues to shift, acts like these will escalate and the true nature of man’s best friend, the dog, and mankind (two-legged beast) will be revealed.
Revelations makes it known that, “We are living in the image of the beast.” This statement alone clearly separates us from them.
